(She goes out with Bianca Maria.) SCJ-1NK IV.--Alessandro remains on the balcony, his back against one of the jambs of the door, still looking at the country. Leonardo, with his eyes, follows his sister as she leads the blind woman over the threshold. Alessandro.-What is that fire over there upon the summit of Larissa? Look! One, two, three fires. Another fire there below Lycone. Do you see? Do you see the columns of smoke? They seem motionless. Not a breath of air stirring. What an endless calm! It is one of the most beautiful and most solemn nights that I have ever witnessed. (A pause. Leonardo approaches his friend, places a hand upon his shoulder with a fraternal gesture and remains silent.) Look at the color and the lines of the mountains against the sky! Every time I look at them in the evening, I feel for a moment a spontaneous adoration toward their divinity. In no other land does one feel as in this, that there is something sacred in the view of distant mountains. Is it not so? Leonardo (in an altered voice).--It is true. One must pray to the mountains, they are pure. Alessandro.--How pure they are to-night! They seem to be made of sapphire. Arachnaeus only is still red; its top is always the last to go out. But what are those fires? They multiply, they spread over the hills, down to the plain. Look below Larissa...
