Excerpt: .A small church of Dutch Christians in Malacca was at this time without a pastor, and they invited Mr. Milne to occupy the vacant place. This he declined, on the ground that he was commissioned for another purpose; but he undertook to conduct divine service for their benefit once a week. For about a year no land was obtained for the erection of the meditated buildings; but at the beginning of 1816 Mr. Milne obtained a grant of land from the English Governor at Penang, subject to approval from the Dutch authorities. This was a considerable distance from the town, and not suitable for the purposes of the mission. It was therefore exchanged for a smaller piece near the city gates, a sum of about two hundred pounds being paid as a further recompense to the vendor. Thus was a site obtained in a most eligible situation. It has been mentioned that workmen as printers had accompanied Mr. Milne from China. He now procured a printing-press, founts of English and Malay types, and all necessary apparatus for setting to work. In order to keep his men employed, he printed an edition in English of Doddridge s Rise and Progress of Religion in the Soul, and Bogue s Essay on the Truth of the Christian Religion. These were sold or distributed amongst the English residents and adventurers in China, India, and in the wide Archipelago of the East. On Mr. Morrison resuming his work at Canton, he...
